

ABM Planning Workbook:

Account Identification, Insights and Touchpoints

How to use this worksheet

Large (one-to-one) Program

Identifying fewer accounts for deeper engagement often requires less "hard" data for account selection. Instead, you'll need more participation from stakeholders to identify accounts that align with business and ABM priorities.

- 1. Complete section 1.
- 2. Review sections 2 and 3 to identify meaningful inputs and prepare for the collaborative process to determine target accounts.

Named/Industry (one-to-many) Programs

You'll want to tailor your account identification plan to the scale of your program. Collaboration with sales is critical, but you can do a lot of preparation to gather meaningful data to ensure an efficient process.

- 1. Complete section 1.
- 2. Review sections 2 and 3 to plan for data collection and research for account identification.

Section 3: Profile Identification

Large (on-to-one) Program

- If you are only targeting a small list of accounts, you may not need to identify an Ideal Customer Profile (ICP).
- If your list of accounts is too big, gathering some of the information below may aid prioritization and collaboration with the sales team.

Named/Industry (one-to-many) Program

- Defining your Ideal Customer Profile (ICP) can help you identify critical characteristics to target in ABM.
- Your ICP can help you identify ideal customers or prospects in your existing database that match the profile, or prioritize the type of new accounts you want to target.

What information to identify an ICP do we already have, and where is it located? What information will we need to acquire?
